A Life of Art and Medicine

Frank H. Netter was born in Brooklyn, New York, in 1906. From an early age, he displayed an exceptional talent for sketching and painting. However, it was not until he enrolled at New York University School of Medicine that his passion for medicine ignited.

Balancing his demanding medical studies with his artistic pursuits, Netter developed a unique ability to merge the two disciplines. He found that drawing helped him to visualize and understand complex anatomical structures, and his illustrations soon became a valuable tool for his own learning.
